CAPACITY CROWD AT TRINITY LUTH. WOMAN'S LEAGUE 5th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

A capacity crowd filled the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church of New Lenox last Tuesday afternoon to celebrate the 5th Anniversary of the Women's League organization.

Guests were seated around four large tables, representing the four seasons. Decorating the head table was a winter scene with a large area of "cotton snow" fenced in with farm buildings, skating pond, and figurines skating at work and at play, plus all the farm animals. At either end of the scene were white candles. The nut cups were little snow balls and the program covers in the shape of Christmas trees.

The next table represented spring with a dozen little hats displayed on standards and flanked with yellow candles. Some hats were modern and several were from an old collection. Likewise modern and "dated" hats were on a tall "hat tree" at a small table to the side. The nut cups were flower pots with a spring flower and the program covers were in the shape of hats.

The third table held the summer scene with its swimming pool, cabin among cedar trees, bathing girls and beach sand. White candles in star holders were at each end of this scene. The program covers were in the shape of a fish and the nut cups were decorated with sail boats.

The fourth table represented fall with its horn of plenty well filled with choice fruits and vegetables; and pumpkin covered programs and chrysanthemum nut cups made this table most attractive. The candles in their star holders were a coppery brown.

All the decorating was due to the effort and ingenuity of Mrs. Ione Ruthenbeck and Mrs. Thora Rydberg.

At a small side table covered with a Madeira cloth was the three tiered birthday cake, decorated in yellow and white and topped with five yellow candles. This was the work of Mrs. Loretta Ridgeway.

Pastor William Leske of Joliet, as Master of Ceremonies, gave the welcome and prayer. Group singing of "America the Beautiful" followed. While the group sang "Happy Birthday to You" Mrs. Anne Krog, Pres. of the League cut the cake. Each preceding President also cut the cake: Mrs. Anne Krog, first and present, Mrs. Aurelia Bruns, Mrs. Thora Rydberg, Mrs. Esther Weber, and Mrs. Ione Ruthenbeck as substitute for Mrs. Krog as present chairman.

Lunch was served, followed by each table singing an appropriate song for the season it represented with Mrs. Audrey Braun leading accompanied by Mrs. Aurelia Bruns at the piano. Songs were: "Winter Wonderland", "Easter Parade", "In The Good Old Summer-time" and "Shine On Harvest Moon."

Selections by the Joliet Township high school Madrigal choir served as the entertainment. Members were: Bill Rutter, leader; Jacqueline Reichman, Flo Daniel, Phyllis Koerner, Phyllis Gustafson, Don Carter, Phillip Noll and Robert McFadden.

Marene and Nancy Holl, two capable youngsters from Joliet, gave several splendid readings and musical selections. Table prizes were won by Miss Nancy Holl, Joliet; Mrs. Wm. Leske, Joliet; Mrs. A. W. Gode, Mokena; Mrs. Charles Brouse, New Lenox and Mrs. Arthur Garriss, Chicago.

John Kirincich Making Bid For Office of Sheriff

John Kirincich, Candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff in the April Primary, is carrying on a vigorous campaign that is taking him to all parts of the county.

As a former deputy under the late Sheriff Oliver Flint, and as Chief Special Investigator for the State's Attorney's Office for the past nine years, Mr. Kirincich has become known throughout the county, particularly among the F-Men. The F-Men have accomplished much in the past decade in combating and reducing crime in the rural sections, and in their efforts have had the close cooperation and assistance of John Kirincich.

John Kirincich

One of the highlights of his career in this regard, was his work in the investigation that led to the arrest of the brutal slayers of Edward Pansa, Crete farmer, in 1937. The murder of Mr. Pansa and the shooting of his wife, who fortunately recovered from her wounds, caused a wave of indignation and terror thruout the country which was calmed by the speedy capture of the slayers. One of them, John Jelliga, paid for his crime in the electric chair. The other, Michael Mangus, committed suicide in the county jail while awaiting trial.

Another outstanding case in which Kirincich played a prominent role as an investigator was the extradition of James Williams from California. Williams, upon his return to Will county, confessed the brutal slaying of Elsie Lichtenwalter of Wilton Township. Williams plead guilty in open court and drew a 99 year term in the State Prison.

State's Attorney Burke gives considerable credit to Kirincich in these cases for an outstanding job of investigation which provided the evidence necessary to their successful prosecution.

Kirincich, both in his work in the State's Attorney's Office and as a deputy sheriff, has had close association with the Will County F-Men's organization. He has worked cooperatively with this vigilante group in helping keep rural crime at an extremely low ebb, and has disposed of no cases involving the property or family of the farmer without consultation and complete approval of representatives of the F-Men Organization.

Kirincich, in the current campaign, finds himself in much the same situation as were County Coroner E. A. Kingston and County Auditor Herman Grassle in the 1944 campaign.

"These two popular office-holders were opposed by the Republican party machine, which in Will County is beginning to show signs of becoming a strong rival of the generally despised Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, by attempting to dictate who shall or shall not aspire to public office," Kirincich explained.

"Kingston and Grassle", he continued, "were able to successfully ward off the opposition put up by the dictatorial Republican machine and were nominated in the GOP primary by large pluralities. I am confident that I, too, will have the support of independent and free-thinking Republican voters who feel that a primary election should be one in which everyone has a fair chance to vie for the nomination."

"I am certain that citizens of this type do not like being told how to mark their ballots when they enter the polls on election day. I feel rather that they are independent enough to think things out for themselves and reach their own decisions when exercising the right of franchise."

Mr. Kirincich is kindly, having a wife and two children of his own. Veterans and GI's would receive most favorable consideration, he having had two brothers overseas for almost four years.

His surviving relatives are: Nan G., his wife, Dr. G. W. Westcott and Dr. A. C. Westcott of Chicago; Fred Westcott, California; Mrs. Marie Garot, Mrs. Adelia Motes and Mrs. Pearl Weaver of Chicago, Mrs. Lydia Wagner and Mrs. Maud Wilson of Wisconsin.

Why Not Have Street Signs and Nos. For Mokena?

With a big expansion and development program at the door, Mokena must prepare to adopt modern airs. For instance it would be the smart thing right now to adopt a house numbering plan and the erection of street signs giving the names of the streets. Tinley Park adopted this system a number of years ago. Frankfort is now doing the same thing. Orland Park has had street signs a number of years. New Lenox, altho not incorporated, has also had street signs erected. By having the residences and business places numbered, and the streets designated by their proper names, it is easier to find a certain dwelling or business place than to ask for directions.

WALLGREN AND LUMBER
WASHINGTON. — Lumber price ceilings topped the agenda of the President's conference the other day with his old friend Gov. Mon Wallgren at Washington.

However, Wallgren also took occasion to invite Truman to spend a vacation this summer in the northwest aboard the presidential yacht.

"The people of my state would be delighted to have you as a guest, and you can also take a trip up to Alaska on the Williamsburg," Wallgren told him.

Truman accepted tentatively, saying he would go if he could possibly make it.

Wallgren's main business, however, was to strongly urge an increase in the price ceilings on lumber. He maintained that this was necessary in order to increase lumber output for the housing program.

"We are facing a serious job crisis in our lumber mills, Harry," said the Washington governor. "We have a model unemployment compensation law in my state, but many unemployed workmen are swiftly using up the 26 weeks they are entitled to draw as compensation. Both from the labor standpoint and the housing shortage, inventories in our mills must be built up as quickly as possible."

IDLE WAR PLANTS

Governor Wallgren also urged the sale of government-owned light metal plants, now idle in his area, to private operators as another means of increasing employment. Two idle plants in question are the Aluminum Rolling mill and the Aluminum Ingot companies at Spokane, operated by Alcoa during the war. Henry Kaiser wants to buy the former for the production of aluminum-built automobiles and prefabricated housing.

Wallgren told Truman that the lumber situation has been aggravated by a neat little device of certain big timber outfits, including the Weyerhaeuser interests, which, calculatedly or otherwise, has been stifling competition. Under the Washington constitution, the state government must sell timber to the highest bidder, but some big outfits have been bidding over the price ceilings. This causes all bids to be thrown out.

The President said he would talk to the RFC about the plants, but suggested that Wallgren thrash out his lumber price problems with price control boss Chester Bowles.

BUTTER BLACK MARKET

The office of international trade, now under the commerce department, is planning to ask U. S. customs officials to investigate some strange shenanigans in the re-sale of butter this country has been exporting to Mexico.

Despite the serious butter shortage, which has caused the American housewife to turn to substitutes and jam for her table, we sent 5,500 pounds of butter to Mexico in the last quarter of 1945.

Some of this is now winding up at Tiajuana, the Mexican resort town across the border from San Diego, where the butter is being sold to American tourists for the fabulous price of $1.25 a pound.

Under export price ceilings, enforced by the OPA and the department of commerce, this same butter was sold to Mexican dealers at from 47 to 49 cents a pound. The price varies a couple of cents a pound, depending on the type of packaging.

In other words, we are now buying back American-made butter from Mexico for triple the price Mexican dairy dealers are paying us for it. Commerce department officials can only guess how much smuggled butter may be involved in this cross-border black market, but the customs office will be asked to make a thorough probe.

NOTE—Mexico is also one of our biggest purchasers of exported nylon stockings. Out of a total of 9,110 dozen pairs of nylons exported in November—the last monthly figures available—Mexico bought 5,010 dozen pairs. Cuba received 2,603 dozen pairs.

CAPITAL CHAFF

One reason for the current international food shortage is that Leo Crowley, when FEA boss, refused to heed the warning of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson last summer, when Anderson argued that FEA should help increase plantings of winter wheat, cereals and proteins in South America. The South American crop was hit by drought, or it might have been larger.

Sen. Tommy Hart, the only admiral on the senate military affairs committee, recently asked committee members if there were a dictaphone in the walls. He complained that the Washington Merry-Go-Round had quoted him all too accurately when, at a secret session, he defended the war department regarding demobilization. . . . Rep. Clare Hoffman of Michigan, who considers himself an expert at anti-labor legislation, was miffed because he was not consulted in the writing of the harsh Case bill passed by the house recently.

A PEOPLE IN CONFUSION

LESSON TEXT: Judges 2:7, 11, 16-23.
MEMORY SELECTION: The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear.—Hebrews 13:6.

Confusion is a word well suited to describe the world today. With the end of the war we had hoped for peace and goodwill, and what have we? We may learn from the experience of Israel the reasons for such confusion. They, too, had come into their land and should have had only peace and prosperity. Instead there were turmoil and disorder. Why?

The success or failure of both nations and individuals is ultimately determined by their attitude toward the law of God. He is always right and true. The constant factor in a world order that swings wildly from one extreme to another is his law, which is perfect and eternal.

God is no respecter of persons. Even Israel, his own chosen nation, found that observing God's law meant blessing, and failure to do so brought judgment and sorrow. No man is great and powerful enough to ignore this rule, and none is exempt from its operation.

I. The Cause—Forgetting God (vv. 7, 11).

The Lord had promised the land to them as they went in and possessed it by faith in him. He fully kept that promise in the measure that they believed him. They never did take the whole land, but that was because of their failure, not God's.

As the people of Israel took possession of the land, they went forward in the way of blessing as long as Joshua, and the elders who remembered God, kept them steady and true. We have here an excellent illustration of the power of a godly example. It is far stronger than we think.

The fact that a nation has been highly privileged and has been exalted to a place of power and honor will not save it in the day when God is forgotten. Israel no longer had God-fearing men to bring it back to the Lord, and so began its awful drifting.

We Americans are rightly proud of our great land, its mighty resources, its fine past and promising future. But what is the future to be? Oh, we say, the most glorious days are ahead! They may be, but only if we, like our forefathers who established this nation, recognize God. If we do not, America will go the way of the forgotten empires of centuries past, and that in spite of all its past achievements and its present promise.

It is a significant thing that our business and national leaders often come from Christian homes, but it is sad that they themselves are so frequently not Christians. Their lives are shaped by the teaching and influence of godly parents, but what will their children do if they are not brought up in the fear and admonition of the Lord?

II. The Condition—National and Spiritual Confusion (vv. 16-19).

The history of the period of the judges in Israel is incomplete, but what we have shows the awful condition of the nation. Not only were they in separate tribes, but the people as a whole were divided into three groups—north and south of Jerusalem, and east of the Jordan. The moral and spiritual decay were evident in their turning to the immoral practices of Baal-worship.

One would have thought that God would give up a people so set on sinning, but he did not. He provided deliverance for Israel. That gives us courage, for we know that he has not given us up, but has provided in Christ a sure deliverance, if America will turn to him.

It is interesting to note that God works through men. Some of these judges were great men; others were just ordinary men. But each in his appointed place, at the appointed time, was God's man.

Confusion, sin and disobedience cannot be tolerated indefinitely. So Israel stubbornly went on to

III. The Conclusion — Judgment from God (vv. 20-23).

God not only will not hold a back-sliding nation guiltless, but will bring judgment even if he has to turn over his people to a despoiling nation. He has instruments of individual and national chastisement, and he is ready to use them.

Notice that wherever they went the Lord's hand was against them. There is no place to flee from the presence of God. Anyone who thinks he can do it should read Psalm 139:7-12. It can't be done. That is a comfort to the believer, but it is very disquieting to the unbeliever.

They compromised with evil, and lost not only their testimony but their very spiritual life. They forsook God and took into their friendship the enemies of God, only to find that they were their own enemies.

We are in danger now of compromise with evil, both in our personal and in our national lives. As we do—and if we do—we may expect only disaster and judgment.

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Jim Keller and his sister, Jane, with old MacDowell, the foreman, operate El Rancho de Las Palomas. They are on the lookout for a former employee, Jordan, a drunkard and dope-runner. MacDowell picks up a strange young man in his car. The stranger wants work and Jim needs ranch hands, so Mac takes the new man to the ranch. Jim's friend, Max Stenhardt, lies ill with pneumonia in the ranch's sickroom. Old Teresa, the Mexican woman, thinks Stenhardt has "got a devil" in him. The newcomer goes close to the sick man's window, waits until the nurse is out of the room, then speaks one word: "Sherwin." The sick man is startled.

CHAPTER II

Her blue eyes widened. Another question was on her lips, but a door opened suddenly and the trained nurse came down the long corridor toward them.

Jane turned quickly. "Anything wrong, Fanny?"

The nurse shook her head. "He's gaining all the time."

"Fine!" Jane turned in an explanatory way to the stranger: "A friend of my brother's, Mr. Stenhardt, was taken suddenly ill with pneumonia here; we couldn't let him be moved and he's been having a hard time. Miss Sewell, this is the friend in need who helped old Mac. Mr.—?" she looked around. "Actually, I don't know your name!"

"John—?" he began, and stopped, momentarily confused.

"But there's more to it than that!" she laughed.

His face burned; he was trying to remember what name he had given old MacDowell; unaccountably it seemed to evade him, and again he hated to lie to this girl.

"Hazlett," he said at last.

Her eyes met his for an instant and he thought there was a questioning look in them, but she wrote his name down mechanically on a slip of paper on the desk.

"John Hazlett."

It had a bizarre effect; he knew that it would be hard to get used to it. He stared at it oddly himself, then suddenly aware that his look might be a self-betrayal, he averted his eyes, conscious that he had lost the thread of the talk between Jane Keller and the nurse; but Jane was sorting the mail for her.

"Here are yours, Fanny, and some for Max." She held them out, and the nurse, gathering them all up, departed hastily toward the sickroom.

"John Hazlett," she repeated quietly; then lifting her honest eyes to his, she added: "that's not your name."

trained in a hard school. He rolled Jordan over and got his hand almost on his throat, then suddenly they both went over the ledge. Below it, Jane had planted poppies. The two men fell together, struck and unclenched. Jordan leaped up and ran. His antagonist had struck his head on a stone, and there was an instant in which he saw stars and heard the shouts from the house; Jane had roused the vaqueros!

He rose dizzily to his feet, brushed his hand across his eyes, and tried to discern the fleeing figure. The moon was just rising behind the mountains; the sky was silver with it, but the earth was dark, like the bottom of a cup. He ran forward, stumbling now and then on strange ground, but, as the sky brightened, he made out the dark figure ahead of him, still running. He did not know where they were going. Behind them was a confusion of sounds, in front he began to hear the cattle in the corrals, but he kept on.

A flame shot out ahead of him. He made out the stooping figure of a man; something like a torch shot up in the air, hurtled forward and fell blazing. As it fell he saw that the gates were open and things were moving. He heard bellows of terror, saw horns flash in the light of a blazing torch, and the very earth shook under his feet. A flood of dark, seething, writhing shapes poured out. Another torch blazed on the other side, another herd broke loose, the gates caught fire, the night was ablaze with flame and smoke, and bellowing animals were rushing together in a great stampede. One herd rushed at the blaze, another trampled over it, with pounding hoofs and whirling horns; bellowing with terror, the cattle stampeded. In the nick of time, the young man sprang behind a huge old tree trunk and the red stream parted and flowed past him. Dust blinded him, but he heard the trampling of horses and the shouts of the vaqueros; they were riding down from the house and he caught a wild cry from the man whom Mac had called "Pete."

"By gosh, he's let loose the yearlings; the gates are afire!"

Not only the gates, but some piled brushwood had caught. The flames leaped up ten feet in the wind and sent out long black streamers over the bellowing herd and the wild figures of the riders. The vaqueros shouted and whirled their quirts, trying to stem the tide, but the yearlings were wild. Some of them were splashing and floundering in the creek, some headed straight for the canyons, but a few plunged into the flames and came out smoking and mad. Bellowing with pain and fury, they charged at the shouting herders. Here a horse was gored, there a rider went down and the horse bolted for the stables. The brightening sky was streaked with black smoke clouds, pandemonium reigned.

The man who had called himself "Hazlett" straightened against his tree; he saw a riderless horse coming, his bridle flying loose. With a leap he reached the frightened animal's head, caught the reins and clung by main force. There was an instant of intense action, the horse plunging and kicking, then the man conquered and scrambled to the saddle. The flames seemed to have gained new fuel; when they died down in one place, they leaped up in another. Everything that could burn was afire. The wind carried burning brands and tossed them on madly whirling horns, bulls gored each other in sheer terror; the distant ranch-house shone white in the reflection, the mountains loomed black against a silver sky.

The young man who had never seen the like of this before, held in the frightened horse and thrilled with a new emotion; he tasted freedom, adventure, the joy of living. He knew nothing of herding these wild things, but he longed to ride into the midst of it, though he felt his horse trembling under him. Then, in a flash, he saw a big car speeding toward him; the moonlight showed it clearly, when it stopped and a man leaped out and came running into the thick of it. As he came he recognized him; it was Jim Keller! Back before he was expected. A moment before he would have been safe, but the herd had broken, some of the yearlings had turned before the shouts of the vaqueros. With a rush they came straight for the single figure in front of them; in half a second it would be too late! Hazlett had no spurs, but he struck his heels into his horse's sides. Frightened, the animal shot forward in front of the oncoming rush, in front of Jim.

"Keep behind my horse—quick!" The young man felt in his pocket as he saw Jim stop and reel with surprise. He rode his horse across the space and turned to face the danger.

Flame and moonlight outlined the black forms and white horns, fifty-sixty—he could not count them. The earth seemed to shake under them; his horse plunged and he swung in his seat. They were coming, they were almost on him, they would trample horse and rider! Then he did the one thing he could think of, he fired point blank at the front row. There was a terrible plunge and below, and a big steer crumpled and fell to its knees. Its mates fled from it, parting in two streams and flowing on either side. In the center the horse and rider whirled in a wild semi-circle, shielding the man on foot. Again and again he fired, and when he hit, they gave way, bellowing. Flames were behind them, the vaqueros were shouting on their right; they hurtled themselves at the bridge, jammed it, toppled over and went into the water. As the stream of maddened beasts parted and swept past and left them, the young man dismounted.

"Take my horse, Mr. Keller," he said.

Jim looked up at him, dazed.

"Who are you? My God, I was a fool; you saved my life!"

The dawn was breaking behind the mountains when Hazlett limped up toward the house. He had been with the other men in the saddle all night. As the day broke the vaqueros had been able to count the damage—the burning gates and brush, the stampeded yearlings, two horses gored to death and a heavy toll of cattle. Meanwhile, Jordan and his confederates had made good their escape; that hit the enraged cowpunchers more sharply than Keller's losses. Hazlett could hear them swearing in a queer medley of Spanish and English. By this time they all knew of Jim's narrow escape and made room for the newcomer more readily, but they drifted past him now to storm Ah Ling's kitchen. Hazlett came slowly, his eyes on those windows into which he had looked the night before. Stenhardt's stricken face seemed to rise before him again. He laughed bitterly to himself, then old Mac, coming out of the house, saw him and stopped to slap him on the shoulder with his well hand.

"Gosh, you're a trump, Hazlett!" he said heartily. "You sure saved the boss. He wants to see you; I reckon you can get any place you want round Las Palomas now!"

Hazlett stared down at the mud and dust that covered him from head to foot.

"He nearly broke my head; the honors are his," retorted the younger man grimly.

Old Mac nodded. "That's like him, the fox! Come on over to breakfast after you've seen Jim."

Mac pointed toward the front door and the young man, still reluctant, crossed the wide veranda and entered the hall. There was no one in sight; the sun had not yet topped the mountains and that long corridor was shadowed by day-gloom. Far down was a door that shut in Stenhardt! Involuntarily the newcomer took a step toward it, then he heard a quick movement across the hall, a door opened and Jane came to him, both hands outstretched.

"You've made good," she said, her eyes shining, "you've more than made good; Jim told me!"

Widows' War Pensions

There have been so many inquiries concerning pensions for widows of veterans of both World Wars I and II that we are giving here the general provisions for the various types of pensions:

Pensions for widows, children and dependent parents of veterans whose death resulted from service in both World Wars I and II: widow, but no child, $50; widow with one child $65 and $13 for each additional child; no widow, but one child, $25; no widow, but two children, $38 equally divided, and $10 for each additional child; dependent father or mother, $45, or both $25 each.

A widow means she must have been married to the veteran prior to December 14, 1944, lived continuously with him until date of death, except where there was a separation due to misconduct of or procured by the veteran, without fault of the widow—and must not have remarried.

Pensions for widows and children of World War I for death not connected with service: widow, but no child, $35; widow and one child, $45 and $5 for each additional child; no widow, but one child, $18; no widow but two children, $27 equally divided; no widow but three children, $36, and $4 for each additional child. The same definition of widow applies as above. This pension is not payable to any widow without income, or to a child, whose annual income exceeds $1,000, or to a widow with child or children where annual income exceeds $2,500.

There is no provision for pensions to widows of World War II for death not connected with service.

Questions and Answers

Q. What type of dependents must a hospitalized veteran who is rated 100 per cent or more disabled have in order to draw more than the $20 monthly institutional award? — E. G. R., Milwaukee, Wis.

A. The Veterans' administration says that if you have one dependent, you may draw a pension of $115 per month or more, depending on nature of your disability, if you are 100 per cent disabled. The amount in excess of your $20 may be sent to the dependent.

Q. I have been trying to get readjustment compensation of $20 per week, but have been unable to do so. I am a veteran of this war with 26 months and have a disability discharge, but have not got a pension yet. So I would like to know how to get the $20 a week.—R. F. S., Wolf Island, Mo.

A. The fact that you have a disability discharge, or even drawing a pension should not interfere with receiving readjustment compensation under the G.I. bill. Requirements for this compensation are (1) you reside in the U. S.; (2) you are completely unemployed or if partially employed, at wages less than $23 per week; (3) that you are registered with and reporting to a public employment office, USES; and (4) that you are able to work and available for suitable work. Have your discharge or separation papers with you when you register for employment.

Q. I was reading where they are still counting points since V-J Day. The Red Cross said they froze them V-J Day. Please answer which is correct and also how many points and how many years of service do you have to have to be discharged? —Mrs. E. D., Louisville, Ky.

A. The war department says that for the record, men in the service are still earning points for each month of service, but for the purposes of discharge, points earned as of September 2, 1945, are counted. For the army, according to General Eisenhower, men with 40 points as of September 2, except volunteers, or with two years service will be home by June 30; men with 45 points or 30 months' service will be home by April 30.

Q. To a lonely wife and mother of Vienna, Mo., and Mrs. J. C., of Carterton, Va., each of whom have three children.

A.—Your husbands are eligible to apply for discharge immediately because you each have three children. The same answer holds true for Mrs. H. R., New Boston, Texas.

Q. A few weeks ago, I began a correspondence course with a New York school at a cost of $80 for the entire course. A down payment of $20 was made, and five monthly payments must be made to clear up the balance. Would the government pay the entire bill, or must I, because of its low cost, pay the expense?—J. A. V., Webster, Mass.

A. If you are a veteran of this war with an honorable discharge, the government will pay tuition for correspondence courses up to $500. Make application at your nearest Veterans' administration office.

Fun to Stay Home:

A drive in the country has its perils. The parade of sappy billboards is bound to affect your nervous system. And there is always a lunkhead on the road, who will send you to the nearest hospital babbling that he had the right of way.

Nothing can top a home-cooked meal. The cuisine in swanky spots is usually tatty, but a glance at the steep fees for food is bound to give anyone not on the columnist "cuff" indigestion.

Locking paws with a cutie-pie or patting her knees under a cafe table is a popular form of recreation. Yet the privacy of the home provides the coziest atmosphere for cupidooes. Besides, you can be arrested for playing Post Office in public.

There is plenty of danger in night clubs. The air is usually foul, the music is brassy and the emcees' inept cavorting is invariably pitiful. Making goo-goo eyes at the doll across the room is more perilous than smoking hop. She might have a boy-friend who packs a wallop like Joe Louis. Or what is worse—she might know a good lawyer.

Traveling has many advantages but the scenery is never as compelling as it appears in travelogues. All you are certain to acquire while romping around the globe is an acute case of homesickness.

Strolling in the street isn't all it's cracked up to be. Mendicants clutter every block, and you risk running into bores you're trying to duck. Then there are the sadistic motorists who have declared war on every pedestrian.

"In those days they didn't have rich young ladies such as you to pay taxes." . . . At Sardi's, Mrs. John Wildberg remarked: "Money is worthless today." . . . "Unless," said her producer groom, "you have none." . . . Buddy Lester says that with the shirt shortage—it is amazing how many people are still willing to risk losing theirs in Wall St.

Add Shelf Units With One for the Corner

IF YOU want shelves on one side of the room only, one or more of the B units shown here with an A unit at each end is a smart combination. If you wish to run the shelves around two sides of the room, a corner unit, shown at C, will also be needed.

All of the units in the sketch are well proportioned with deep shelves and are especially designed to be made by the man who is handy with hammer and saw. Patterns are available with actual-size cutting guides for the curved shelves. Stock widths of lumber are used and the pattern lists all materials needed. Only the simplest hand tools are required.

The A and B units are made with pattern 270; the C unit for the corner with 271. Patterns are 15 cents each or 25 cents for both patterns mailed to one address. Send requests for patterns direct to Mrs. Spears.

Amos Let the Doc in on His Secret of Longevity

Upon examining old Amos, who was 87, the doctor was surprised at his excellent health.

"Amazing!" exclaimed the medic. "To what do you attribute such good health at your age?"

"Well," answered Amos, "when we married, my wife and I agreed not to argue. If she got angry, she promised to go out to the kitchen without saying anything till she calmed down. And I was to go out into the backyard if I got angry."

"But," interrupted the doc, "what has that got to do with it?"

"Well," drawled the old man, "I've lived a good part of my life outdoors."

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3 by 2nd Lt. Erlyne Conel

High Ho! to Finger Lakes we go! A top vacation spot in America is the Finger Lakes region of New York. Here's the route as it was flown by Capt. Nell "Doc" Kingston and 2nd Lt. Fred Schrumm, both of Squadron 613-3, Civil Air Patrol. Spunked by a tailwind, their Aeronca made the trip from Rubinkam airport to Hornell Airport, New York in five and a half hours. And that's with five stops! The first was Tri-State airport six miles from Angola, Ind. Situated in a hollow Tri-State offers good runways, but wires present a hazard. The second refueling point was Hinde Airport at Sandusky, Ohio. With the wind directly from the North, the take off was made right out over Lake Erie Bay. From there, they headed for Solon Airport, a big, beautiful landing spot Cleveland can be proud of. Topping mountains ranging up to 3,500 feet, they next stopped at Gowanda airport which is in the center of an Indian Reservation. It has high pine trees at the end of a short runway. Then, Hornell! Between the above lines is a book of planning, map checking, thrilling sights from the air, and fun!

During my "hanger-flying" with Capt. Kingston, he said that when he was a youngster his dad took him to a field near Hornell where famous Glen Curtiss was dreaming, and working up new aviation ideas. For five Sundays in a row he went out to see an amphibian being prepared for flight on a catapult platform. Then came the big day, the plane was started, it slithered down the catapult, then "plunked and sunk" in 30 feet of water. Curtiss salvaged and later flew the plane on trips that made aviation history!

Sportsmen's Show. This year, Chicago's Coliseum was buzzing with Aviation! An Aerline Champion and a Globe Swift were on display. And war aces, including Major Don Gentile were in attendance. I discovered by visiting all the booths that resort owners are getting "hep" to the fact that its fun to fly to vacationlands. And they are broadening their facilities to land the "flock." (Next week, I'll review choice Canadian and Wisconsin regions and how to get to them by air.)

Calling all Flyers: You're warned to beware of getting lost in the wilds of the new mustache being raised by Rubinkam's Line Boy, Ronnie Peterson. Sunday, at Rubinkam Airport I said Hi to Dr. Neil Kingston, Ray Robinson the Jack Mortons and Harry Joneses, Sam Puglise, Hal Leboy and Linda Tattersfield. Visiting from Chicago Heights Airport were Ernie Rovlari and Harry Fransen. X-Country flyers were Lt. Ted Farrington and John "Smitty" Smith who air-viewed the season's last local fox hunt while on their way to Kankakee.

"Candy" Eats Candy. Our student flyer was eating her heart out, as well as hot dogs, pop corn and candy while waiting to get Up In the World. But the combination of wet field and high winds kept our "ladybird" grounded.

Checkpoints: Girl student pilots of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. fly a million miles a year, Swedish Airline has ordered four 300 M. P. H. Boeing Stratocruisers. A portion of their schedules will terminate in Chicago, 26 years ago the first stratosphere flight was made by a Chicagoan! Major R. W. "Shorty" Schroeder battled and climbed the Highway to 38,180 feet in an open cockpit supercharged LePerre single engine military plane. Retired, the Major's Glenview residence overlooks the Navy Air base. In the past two months, airline passengers in Chicago have increased 73 percent! And, during 1946, one and a half million airline passengers are expected through the windy city!

That's all for now.

Ill. Bell Telephone Co.
To Build More Free
Rural Lines

The Illinois Bell Telephone Company has had approval by the Illinois Commerce Commission of its plan for the liberalization of telephone pole line construction charges in rural areas. This improvement goes into effect on March 1, 1946.

Under the new plan, where no pole line is at present available along public highways, the telephone company will construct a pole line for 3-4 of a mile without charge in order to provide service to a new subscriber. It will continue to extend the line free of charge whenever such extension results in an average of one customer for each 3-4 of a mile of pole line. This change will go far toward enabling rural telephone applicants to obtain service for little or no cost for pole line construction. In the past, 1/2 mile of such construction was furnished without charge.

For the relatively few customers in thinly populated areas who may still need to pay some charge for highway construction, the plan provides for billing the amount in small monthly installments for a stated period. Whenever additional customers are connected in an area where construction charges are being applied, the project will be refigured resulting, in many instances, in reductions of the monthly charges for the customers involved.

Poles on private property to carry service from the highway to the rural customers' premises have in the past been set and maintained at the customers' expense. Under the new proposal, the telephone company will share with customers the installation expense and assume all maintenance costs. It will provide, without charge, two poles or the number necessary to furnish 500 feet of entrance wire. In areas where underground type of highway construction is normally used, 500 feet of buried wire, including excavation and fill in, will be furnished.

These more liberal practices which result in further extensions of service at reduced initial cost to the customer represent another step in the telephone company's program to provide more and better telephone service for people in rural areas.

Ed. Follett and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weichselberger attended the funeral of their neighbor, Mr. Edw. F. Westcott, held in Chicago Saturday.

Pvt. Wm. Kaminsky recently received his honorable discharge at Denver from the Air Corp and has returned to his home in Frankfort.

Chicago and Northern Illinois ......an INTERNATIONAL market

The inherent manufacturing and distributing advantages of Chicago and Northern Illinois have brought recognition to this area as a great international marketing center.

For years the Middle West has been a leader in the production of goods for export. Chicago and Northern Illinois—hub of the nation's population, industry, raw materials, transportation and agriculture—provides unrivaled export and import facilities. Today more than a fifth of the 10,000 manufacturing firms in Chicago and Northern Illinois engage in foreign trade, producing a variety of merchandise to satisfy almost any demand from any part of the world.

Ten thousand miles of inland waterways serve this area. Transatlantic vessels may come direct to Chicago and other Lake Michigan ports via the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes. The Illinois deep waterway provides a direct link with the Gulf of Mexico. Current developments in international air travel designate Chicago as the great central terminal for direct routes to the Orient, Europe, South America, Africa, and the Near East. By rail, the area is connected with every important seaport in this country and in Canada.

Location in Chicago and Northern Illinois facilitates expansion of business to reach world-wide markets. Here, expert guidance is available in conducting export and import business from a score of service agencies—banks with foreign departments, international freight forwarders, combination export managers, foreign trade counselors, transportation representatives, foreign consulates, customs officials, foreign trade departments of commercial associations, and others.

Whether an industry's sales plans encompass the central states, the nation or foreign markets, the Chicago and Northern Illinois region offers more efficient distribution to more customers than any other industrial area in the nation.

We will gladly assist in making factual and confidential studies of this area and the possibilities it holds for any particular industry. This service is without charge.

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages

Railroad Center of the United States • World Airport • Inland Waterways • Geographical Center of U. S. Population • Great Financial Center • The "Great Central Market" • Food Producing and Processing Center • Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing • Good Labor Relations Record • 2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power • Tremendous Coal Reserves • Abundant Gas and Oil • Good Government • Good Living

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 3, was:

"CHRIST JESUS"

The Golden Text was:
"Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. . . . And this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHT-EOUSNESS."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots: And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord. . . . as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." (Isa. 11: 1, 2; John 1: 12).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The advent of Jesus of Nazareth marked the first century of the Christian era, but the Christ is without beginning of years or end of days. Throughout all generations both before and after the Christian era, the Christ, as the spiritual idea, the reflection of God,—has come with some measure of power and grace to all prepared to receive Christ, Truth. Abraham, Jacob, Moses, and the prophets caught glorious glimpses of the Messiah, or Christ, which baptized these seers in the divine nature, the essence of Love. The divine image, idea, or Christ was, is, and ever will be inseparable from the divine Principle, God." (p. 333).

Nevada's 'Lost' Turquoise Mine
May Yield Finder Huge Fortune

GOLDFIELD, NEV.—A "lost" turquoise mine within 12 or 14 miles of Goldfield, if found, may bring riches to someone, according to a story published in the Tonopah Times-Bonzana recently, which quotes the experience of Harry Polin.

About 1908, when Polin was in business in Goldfield, he received an inquiry from Tiffany's, New York City, asking who could ship that firm about 100 pounds of turquoise. Polin later asked an old prospector if he could locate some turquoise.

"Sure, sure," the prospector replied. "I got a lot of that stuff—ain't worth anything, is it?"

In time the prospector appeared with two or three ore sacks of material he claimed was turquoise. The stuff was in large chunks, and Harry took it to be copper ore. Doubtful of its value, he boxed it and shipped it to Tiffany. Imagine his surprise two weeks later when he received a check from Tiffany for $500!

And a request for another shipment!

It was some time before the prospector showed up at the store again. When Polin handed him $250 in currency the old fellow almost collapsed. He lost no time in bringing in more of the turquoise, and this time delivered some four sacks of the gemstone. Harry asked him where he was getting it.

The prospector did his best to describe the location of the mine. He explained it was in the Cuprite district, some 12 to 14 miles south of Goldfield.

The next check from Tiffany's was for $1,000, and Polin waited for the old fellow to come back for his share. The prospector never returned, and no one else has ever been able to locate that fabulous turquoise mine, said to be within a dozen miles of this town.

PRETTY... But can she ski? Anyway, Georgia Veal of the Bronx is apparently enjoying the winter sports at the Mountain Top Club on Mount Tronso near Chittenden, Vermont.

General, Admiral
Agree U. S. Will Be Attacked First

WASHINGTON.—If there is a World War III, the aggressor's first move will be an attack on the United States, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz declared here.

"Two world wars have shown beyond dispute that the United States is the real barrier to anyone dreaming of conquest," he said in an address prepared for the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense.

A few days later, in Chicago, a similar statement was made by Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan.

"If war comes again, I firmly believe we will be the first nation attacked," Wainwright said. "Our oceans will be less of a barrier than was the Delaware river to George Washington's little army in 1777."

Both urged universal military training and preparedness against attack. General Wainwright also called for a merger of the armed forces.

Boise Girl in 'Doghouse'

Will 1946 Bring
Worst Drouth
In 100 Years?

BOWLING GREEN, OHIO.—Parts of the United States will suffer one of the most severe drouths in a hundred years, if the weather forecast worked out by Dr. Edwin L. Moseley, professor emeritus at Bowling Green State university, comes true.

His predictions, however, are not for all of the United States, but for those regions in the northeast portion of the nation. Dr. Moseley, who has been making predictions for the past 10 years, bases his opinions on sunspots and tree rings.

Until June, rainfall will be normal, and then will follow a drouth of several months.

"The drouth will be less severe in Illinois and Iowa than farther east," he said. "It will be one of the driest years for a century in New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky."

"Lake Erie, however, will make the drouth less severe in the northern part of Ohio than any other part," he added. "We have few crop failures here, for there are neither drouths nor floods."

Living Cheap in Kentucky in 1853

CYNTHIANA, KY.—Those were the good old days! The cost of living in Kentucky a century ago was revealed here recently when Sam W. Arnold found an old receipted store bill while remodeling a house, according to a story published in the Cynthiana Democrat.

The bill, dated in 1853, was made out to "Sam'l Erwalt, in account with T. D. Urmston." Among the items charged to Erwalt were:

"Pair fine boots, $6.50; bed cord, 35c; hog skin collar, $1.25; 25 cigars, 25c; halfsole and repair of boots, 75c; 8 lbs. nails, 56c; pair coarse shoes, $1.75; wagon whip, 75c; 8 lbs. coffee, $1.13, and 1/2 lb. pepper, 13c."

Credits to Erwalt included four hides at $2.17, $2.66, $1.99 and $2.22 respectively, and a calfskin at 25 cents.

Well, He Could Have Rented His Apartment—

ATLANTA, GA.—Jackson P. Dick has his telephone connected again, and hopes his friends who love practical jokes will let him alone for a while.

He was forced to have his telephone disconnected recently when someone ran a "for rent" advertisement and listed Dick's number to call.

The advertisement offered a four-room house for rent and Dick received more than 500 calls before he gave up and asked the telephone company to disconnect the instrument.

Jackson is still pretty mad at his screwball friends.

JASCHA HEIFETZ... Noted violinist made three trips overseas to play for servicemen during the war, gave hundreds of concerts, and played several times when he had a fever of 102. "My face swelled up like a balloon and my hands were a couple of hams," he admitted recently. "Hives, my boy, hives!"

Boucher Praises 4-H

LINCOLN, NEB.—Chancellor C. S. Boucher of the University of Nebraska described 4-H clubs as one of the nation's chief bulwarks against all forms of government which seek to undermine American democracy, in an address before Nebraska 4-H club leaders.

"The condition and life expectancy of a democracy can be ascertained by observation of the character and quality of its youth movement," Boucher said.

THE best pitched ball game isn't always a matter of what the pitcher figures, but what the opposing batter knows. For example, Joe DiMaggio has faced more than his share of great pitchers, including Bob Feller, Bob Grove, Tex Hughson and the pick of the National league.

When I asked Joe the best pitched game he had ever seen, DiMaggio hesitated about one-fifth of a second.

"That's easy," he said. "It was the game Dizzy Dean pitched against the Yankees in the 1938 World Series. Pitching consists of four important details—an arm, a head, a heart and control. The arm is supposed to be the most important. I guess maybe it is—if you have an arm like Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove or Bob Feller. But in this World Series game Dizzy had no arm. It was gone. We watched him warm up and he could just about get the ball up to his warm-up catcher. This was to be our day. We figured we ought to get about three hits apiece from that daffy-dill Diz was pushing over. It was something pitiful."

Dizzy Dean

"Well, anyway," DiMaggio continued, "here was our pushover. And we all knew that Dizzy Dean had been one of the great pitchers of all time. One of the tops. But he was a crippled duck now. He had no arm."

Just 'Head and Heart' "So what happens? Here come these dinky-dinks floating up to the plate. No speed at all. Not much of a curve. Just a shot put. But they would come at tough spots. Low and inside—around your shoulders—just balls you don't like. Balls that are hard to hit solidly. And we swing and pop up or go out—and there's Diz grinning at us and getting by with only a head and a heart. No stuff at all."

"And if those two Cub infielders hadn't collided early in the game to give us two runs on a weak, dribbling infield roller, Diz would have had us shut out 3 to 0 up to the 8th and I think would have beaten us."

"This game convinced me that Dizzy Dean was one of the greatest of all time. Think what he must have been when he had his arm. I'm glad he was in the other league when he was right."

More About Pitching At this point DiMaggio and your correspondent became involved in a discussion.

"What do you figure the toughest ball to hit?" I asked.

"What's your answer?" Joe said. "A low curve ball over the inside corner," was my reply.

"Any low curve ball," Joe said, "inside or outside. I hit on a level plane. So did Hornsby, Bill Dickey and Babe Ruth. But when you get one of those low ones around your knees, you have to swing in a different way. It's a great thing for the hitters that only a few hurlers can handle this type of pitch. For it takes perfect control to make this low throw. Here's a funny thing. A low curve breaks much faster and sharper than a high curve. Why? I don't know. But it does. After all we have to deal with facts, not with ideas. You know, Grant, from the pitching distance, that ball comes up to you in less than half a second. Johnson's speed was 130 feet a second. You don't have time to do much figuring in half a second. It's different with just a fast ball. You can time that. But you can't time a fast breaking curve around your knees."

Strong Hands Needed You read in various gazettes the number of earnest and enterprising athletes who are now working to build up their legs and arms. Such men as Louis, Conn, Greenberg, Dickey, DiMaggio, Ted Williams, etc. But too many of these, and a great deal too many of the youthful competitors just getting under way, overlook a section of the body just as important. This happens to be the two hands. Hand strength and hand action play a big part in baseball, football, boxing, golf, tennis, riding, basketball, fishing and other sports. Especially in baseball, boxing, horse racing and golf.

A pair of big, powerful hands was Hans Wagner's crowning glory. Jack Dempsey's two iron fists, almost never injured, were a big help. Two of the strongest looking pairs of hands I ever saw belong to Tommy Armour, the golf star, and Bill Dickey, the Yankee catcher. It isn't everybody who happens to be born with Wagner, Dempsey, Armour or Dickey hands. But this defect can at least be partially cured by the right sort of hand exercise. One of the best methods is to use rather small, hard rubber balls, squeezing one in each hand.

Retarding Sprout
Growth in Storage

Loss With Root Crops
Eliminated by Process

By Ora Smith
Cornell University

All who have stored any of the root crops such as beets, carrots, turnips and rutabagas know that two of the most important storage difficulties with these crops are sprouting and shriveling. The higher the humidity of the storage air, the lesser the amount of shriveling. However, if at high humidities the temperature also is much above 40 degrees F., the foot and top growth will be excessive, often resulting in decay of the stored product.

By a very simple procedure, it is now possible to prevent or greatly retard root and top growth of these root crops in storage. Methyl ester of alpha naphthalene acetic acid, which prevents or retards sprout growth in potatoes also will retard root and top growth in the root crops. This results in less decay and better keeping qualities.

Probably the best method of application of this chemical is to spread a small amount of it impregnated in shredded or confettied paper or in an inert dust in the container, bin, pile or pit where they are stored. The paper or dust containing the chemical should be distributed fairly evenly throughout the bin or pit of root crops at the rate of about 10 pounds of paper or 25 pounds of dust to each 100 bushels of root crop.

The use of this chemical should be of value especially for the home storage of root crops as well as to market gardener and truck grower who stores in outdoor pits and cellars, and also to the canners and dehydrators.

Effective Use of DDT
In the Poultry House

While DDT offers little encouragement for the control of the common chicken mite, it has proven effective in the control of other insects that infest the poultry house.

When 3 per cent DDT is added to kerosene and painted on the roosts it is effective in controlling bed bugs. New Jersey station found the 3 per cent dust combination effective when applied to nests.

When sprayed over the roosts and droppings it has proven effective against maggots.

For the control of flies and mosquitoes, a 5 per cent solution should be used during the height of the season. At other times a 2 1/2 per cent solution will prove satisfactory.

A 2 per cent suspension or dust with 5 per cent DDT powder will rid poultry of blue bugs.

Improved Machinery
Rototiller

Instead of turning the ground over as the plow does, the Rototiller churns and thoroughly crumbles the soil with steel claws which rotate rapidly in paddlewheel fashion. The depth of tillage is adjustable. This new rototiller is produced by Graham-Paige Motors at Willow Run, Mich.

Carrots Keep Better With Foliage Removed

Carrots placed in storage will keep considerably better if the tops are removed first, according to results ascertained at Cornell university. There are other advantages, saving in space and in shipping and handling cost when the carrots are marketed.

By removing the tops, the moisture is conserved for the roots. The saving in moisture is reported at about 40 per cent.

Pattern No. 8977 comes in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 takes one yard of 36- or 39-inch material; 2 1/4 yards binding to trim.

For sweeter music, give your phonograph records a bath now and then, using warm water and mild soap.

Grease glass baking dishes before putting food in them to bake and they will be much easier to wash.

An old tennis racket makes a mighty good carpet beater.

Wrap gold and silver evening bags and slippers in dark-colored cloth to prevent tarnish.

Before stuffing fowl wipe the inside thoroughly dry to prevent the stuffing from being soggy.

If you have a favorite piece of jewelry which cannot be worn because it discolors the skin, try this: After cleaning it, give the back a coat of colorless nail polish.

To make a good wire splice, lay the ends side by side, pointing in opposite directions until the doubled portion is about two inches long. Grasp firmly right in the middle with the jaws of a pair of pliers. Wrap one free end firmly about the splice at the left, and the other in reverse about the splice at the right. The result is neat, easily taped, and won't pull apart. Such joints should be soldered, particularly if the wire is part of an electrical unit.

Two-Piece Frock A LEADER in the fashion parade for spring is the attractive two-piece frock. This smart and well fitting version has a youthful U-shaped neckline, ties at the waist for a trim, neat look, and a simple skirt. If you like, have the blouse in a light material, the skirt dark, for a change.

Pattern No. 8990 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 14 takes 3 1/4 yards of 35- or 39-inch material. Due to an unusually large demand and current conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Okapi Seems Made Up of Giraffe, Horse, Zebra, Ox

If naturalists of the 19th century believed they had discovered all of the world's large animals, they were mistaken. The rare and remarkable okapi was not found until 1900, in the deep forests of Belgian Congo. The okapi is a walking puzzle. It has the legs of a zebra, the head of a giraffe, and the thick neck of a work horse. Its body is that of an antelope, and its tail and hoofs like those of an ox. The strange creature has a two-foot-long blue tongue. And its skeleton is precisely the same as that of a prehistoric beast which lived on the island of Crete in the Mediterranean sea some 10,000,000 years ago.

AFTER dinner, dishes are fun to do when you've towels embroidered with these gay sunbonnet girls and colorful balloons! Simple stitchery.

Our Policy on

NEW CAR ORDERS

IN ACCORDANCE WITH FAIR PROCEDURE

We are now accepting orders for earliest possible delivery of new cars. However, as you know, there are not enough new cars for all who want them. Therefore, we want to make a clear statement of our policy—so that everyone will know exactly how we are handling orders for and delivery of new cars during the current shortage period.1 We intend to fill orders for new cars in the order in which they are received. There are two exceptions to this basic rule—2 We will definitely reserve a percentage of our cars for those who have served in the Armed Forces. We feel sure that all our customers will agree with the justice of this exception.3 If definite need for a new car is a factor, we will, in the public interest, determine such cases on the basis of the now abolished, but publicly accepted, OPA priority lists.This policy is in your interest. We are following it because we want to serve you fairly and well today as in the past.The Ford Motor Company and we ourselves are making every effort to deliver your new car promptly and honestly.
